Countering Global Threats - Comparative Analysis of National Security Legal Paradigms and Anti-Terrorism Policies

Docenti: Marco Providera

Testi d'esame:

The written paper's topic shall be selected by the candidate among topics discussed in class. The oral test will focus on the topic which the candidate will have selected for/covered in her/his paper.

A sufficient level of familiarity with the topics/texts indicated in the list REQUIRED READINGS, below, will be nevertheless expected to successfully complete the exam.

Further uploaded materials (NOT indicated in the list below, but from time to time uploaded in the proper section) should be considered as reading suggestions and as illustrative of topics which MAY be selected by candidates for paper's purposes, but WILL NOT be independently tested at oral exam--that is, one of them will be focused on in the oral exam's discussion with a particular candidate ONLY if this latter selected it as her/his paper's topic.

REQUIRED READINGS:

Linda E. Malone, "International Law", Emanuel Law Outlines Series, Aspen, 2011; Only the "Capsule Summary" (pp C1-C56), and only selected sections/pages thereof (which are listed here below), will be covered in class; Topics which are subject matter of these latter may be tested at the oral exam, and may be selected for the written paper;

Malone textbook relevant pages:

C1-C9; C12-C16 (excluding Ch 4, par. VIII, but including Ch 5, par I on pag. C16); C17 (only Ch 5, par II); C20-C32; C53-C56

Jose E. Alvarez, "Governing the World: International Organizations as Lawmakers", 31 Suffolk International Law Rev. 2007-2008, pp. 591-600; 607-610;

Charter of the United Nations: Chapter I; Chapter V, artt. 23-27; Chapter VII, artt. 39-45, 48-51; Chapter XIV; Chapter XVI, art. 103.
