Mohsen Jafari
Student number: 1808905

PhD student in International Order and Human Rights, second year.

Title of project: “Social Integration of Refugees through Education, Employment and Cultural Identity”

The thesis research focuses on social integration of refugees which is currently a challenging issue in many receiving countries. Indeed, integration is a two-way multidimensional process which all parties either refugees and host community are involved in it thus, research will try to realize if education, employment and cultural identity could be considered as best potential solutions for addressing specific problems of refugees in course of their social integration into the host communities. For achieving to this goal refugee-related conventions like the 1951 Geneva Convention and other relevant international human rights law instruments including ICESCR and ICCPR are properly discussed and analyzed. Furthermore, the crucial role of international organizations like UNHCR, IOM, UNICEF, national governments, local institutions and civic societies in terms of refugee integration process would be analyzed and discussed either.

- Chapter of books

- Papers in non-scientific journals

Paper in scientific journals

Reviews

UNHCR, OECD. (2018). Engaging with Employers in The Hiring of Refugees. UNHCR, OECD.