

Zhang Longxi (ed.)

The Concept of Humanity in an Age of Globalization

R11529/197

With 5 figures

V&R unipress

National Taiwan University Press

Contents

Acknowledgment	7
Zhang Longxi
Introduction: Humanity and the Diversity of Conceptualization	9
Fred Dallmayr
1. Who Are We Now? For an “Other” Humanism	21
Jörn Rüsen
2. Towards a New Idea of Humankind: Unity and Difference of Cultures at the Crossroads of Our Time	41
Djelal Kadir
3. Ecce homo : Somewhat Human, Particularly Global, Conveniently Universal, Relatively Unique, Comparatively Incommensurable	55
Balmurli Natrajan
4. The Problem of “Difference” in Discourses of Civilization and Culture	67
Patrick Colm Hogan
5. The Trouble with Moral Universalism: On Human Cognition, Human Bias, and Human Rights	83
Dieter Sturma
6. Humanism and Intercultural Dialogue	101
Georg Essen
7. “Who observes religions?” Negotiating Faith, Politics and the Idea of Humanism in an “Era of Terrorism”	113

Sophia Rosenfeld
8. Humanity and Its Common Sense	121
Donald D. Stone
9. The Theme of Forgiveness in Western Culture	137
David Stern
10. The Idea of Humanity in Jewish Tradition: From “The Image of God” to the Jews of China	153
Oliver Kozlarek
11. Towards a Practical Humanism	175
Zhang Longxi
12. What Is Human or Human Nature? Different Views in Ancient China	189
Krishan Kumar
13. Empires as Bearers of Global Ideas of Humanity	203
G.E.R. Lloyd
14. Humanities in a Globalized World: Vive l’Unité, Vive la Différence . .	217
List of Contributors	229