
Global Development

A COLD WAR HISTORY

SARA LORENZINI

PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS
PRINCETON & OXFORD

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction	1
1 Development as an Ideology for Empire	9
The Civilizing Mission in the Interwar Years	10
Modernity and Authoritarian Rule	13
The Second World War	16
2 Truman's Dream: When the Cold War and Development Met	22
Point Four	26
Studying Backward Areas: Social Scientists, the Marshall Plan, and the Limits of the Cold War	29
3 Socialist Modernity and the Birth of the Third World	33
Ideology Put to the Test on the Colonial Question	34
The Age of Indifference	35
The Afterthought	38
The Age of Neutralism, or the Birth of the Third World	40
Khrushchev's Challenge	42
Features of Socialist Aid: Constructing the Ideological Framework	43
The Political Economy of Socialist Cooperation	45
4 Western Alternatives for Development in the Global Cold War	50
The Inevitability of Foreign Aid as a Cold War Tool?	52
Plans for Eurafrica	55

- An Ideology for the Global Cold War: The Rise of Modernization Theory*
- The Kennedy Administration: A Turning Point?*
- 5 The Limits of Bipolarity in the Golden Age of Modernization
- The Cooperation Imperative in the West*
- Disappointments: The United States and Bickering in the DAC*
- Rostow and the Idea of Binding Rules*
- The European Economic Community Way*
- Coordination among Socialist Countries: The Permanent Commission for Technical Assistance in Comecon*
- Responding to External Challenges*
- 6 International Organizations and Development as a Global Mission
- Precedents: The League of Nations*
- Development as Profession after the Second World War*
- The World Bank*
- The United Nations and Development: The Place for an Alternative?*
- UNCTAD*
- Assessing Aid at the End of the First Development Decade*
- 7 Multiple Modernities and Socialist Alternatives in the 1970s
- The Soviet Union Reinterprets the Two Worlds Theory* 1
- Convergence and Interdependence* 1
- Third World Visions* 1
- China's Development Alternative* 1
- Self-Reliance? Tanzania between the Tazara Railway and Ujamaa* 1
- Third Worldism and the New International Economic Order* 1

8	Resources, Environment and Development: The Difficult Nexus	124
	The End of Technological Optimism?	125
	Recasting the Problems of Modern Society	129
	The Emergence of Global Environmentalism: Stockholm, 1972	133
	Environment and Development as Seen from the East	137
	The Legacy of Stockholm and the Invention of Sustainable Development	139
9	Responding to the Challenges from the Global South: North-South Dialogues	142
	The Birth of Basic Needs in the Second Development Decade	143
	The Lomé Revolution	145
	A Regional Plan: The Euro-Arab Dialogue	148
	North-South Dialogue: The Global Dimension	150
	Development and Human Rights	154
10	The Dynamics of the Lost Decade	160
	Conclusions	169

Notes 179

Bibliography 227

Index 263