

Caesarism and Bonapartism in Gramsci

Hegemony and the Crisis of Modernity

By

Francesca Antonini

BRILL

LEIDEN | BOSTON

Contents

	Preface: Gramsci on Caesarism and Bonapartism	IX
	Acknowledgements	XV
	Abbreviations	XVII
	Note on the Text	XIX
1	The Concepts of Bonapartism and Caesarism from Marx to Gramsci	1
1	The Genesis of the Category between Historiography and Political Polemics	1
2	Marx: From The Eighteenth Brumaire to The Civil War in France	3
3	Across the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries	7
2	The Pre-prison Writings	10
1	Two (Almost) Neglected Categories	10
2	Marx, Gramsci and the Marxian Sources	11
3	Socialism and Romanticism	15
1	Against Maximalism and Reformism: Reckoning with Italian Socialism	15
1.1	Cadorna and Bonapartism	15
1.2	Trade Unionism and Bonapartism	19
1.3	Parliamentary Cretinism and Socialist Reformism	21
1.4	In Memory of Serrati	25
2	The 'Romanticism' of the Italian Bourgeoisie	28
2.1	Marx, Gramsci and the feuilleton	28
2.2	Gioda o del romanticismo and Parabola discendente	29
2.3	Italy's Tragic Farce	33
4	Crisis and Balance: Between Revolution and Restoration	36
1	Gramsci's Political Theory: Crisis and Balance	36
2	The Catastrophic Crisis of Capitalism	37
2.1	Gramsci and the Third International	37
2.2	A Decay and a Genesis	39
2.3	Revolution and Crisis of the Bourgeois-Capitalist World	41
2.4	The Elections of November 1919	43
2.5	A Short Revival	48

- 3 The Balance Metaphor: The Origins of the 'Relations of Force'
 - 3.1 A 'Catastrophic' Balance 51
 - 3.2 Dictatorship of the Bourgeoisie or Dictatorship of the Proletariat? 53
 - 3.3 An Illiberal Order 57

- 5 Bonapartism, Caesarism and Fascism in Gramsci's Journalistic Works 61
 - 1 The Crisis of the Liberal Order and the Rise of Fascism 61
 - 2 A (Critical) Theory of State and Politics 62
 - 3 Marx's Eighteenth Brumaire: Analogies and Analyses 66
 - 4 On the Gramsci-Marx Relationship in the Pre-prison Writings 66

- 6 Towards the *Prison Notebooks 73
 - 1 Continuity and Novelty 73
 - 2 The Editions of Marx's Texts 75
 - 3 Overview of the Occurrences 76

- 7 The Meanings of 'Bonapartism' 78
 - 1 Bonapartism in the Prison Notebooks 78
 - 2 Militarism and War of Movement 79
 - 2.1 Cadornism and Bonapartism 79
 - 2.2 Trotsky and the War of Movement 81
 - 3 Gramsci and the So-called 'Dictatorships of Depretis, Crispienino and Giolitti' 85
 - 4 Bonapartism and Bureaucracy 89
 - 4.1 At the Origin of the Relationship 89
 - 4.2 Between Marx and the Southern Question 93

- 8 Between Bonapartism and Caesarism 97
 - 1 Anachronistic Revival or Useful Analytical Tool? 97
 - 2 Q 13, §§ 23 and 27 and Their First Drafts 99
 - 3 Further Occurrences 102

- 9 Gramsci and the Theory of Caesarism 105
 - 1 Michels and 'Charismatic Leadership' 105
 - 1.1 Q 2, § 75 105
 - 1.2 A 'Programmatic' Ambivalence 108

- 2 'The Old Is Dying and the New Cannot Be Born' 110
 - 2.1 The Balance Formula in the Prison Notebooks 110
 - 2.2 Balance and Catastrophe 112
- 3 The Dreyfus Affair and the 'Tendential' Character of the Catastrophic Crisis 115
- 4 The 'Taxonomy' of Caesarism 118
 - 4.1 Great Personalities and Historical Analogies 118
 - 4.2 The Articulation of the Category 120
 - 4.3 An 'Incomplete' Scheme 124
- 10 Caesarism and Historical Analysis 126
 - 1 Gramscian 'Concerns' 126
 - 1.1 Practical Criteria of Interpretation 126
 - 1.2 Julius Caesar and Caesarism 129
 - 2 The Historico-political Framework of the Prison Notebooks 130
 - 2.1 Gramsci's 'Plural Temporalities' and the Case of France 130
 - 2.2 The 'Waves' of History 133
 - 2.3 Napoleon III as Archetype of Caesarism 135
 - 3 Caesarism and Passive Revolution 138
 - 3.1 The Meanings of a Category 138
 - 3.2 Marx's 'Canons' and the Issue of the Marginal Forces 140
 - 3.3 'Effectual Reality' and New Instruments of Analysis 144
- 11 Hegemony and Modernity 147
 - 1 Twentieth-Century Caesarism 147
 - 1.1 MacDonald, the Labour Party and the Coalition Governments 147
 - 1.2 Italy in the 1920s 150
 - 1.3 Fascism and Caesarism: A Controversial Match 151
 - 2 Crisis of Authority and Caesarist-Bonapartist Solutions 155
 - 2.1 The Organic Crisis 155
 - 2.2 The 'Massive Structure of the Modern Democracies' 158
 - 3 A New Form of Hegemony 160
 - 3.1 A Post-Jacobin Framework 160
 - 3.2 The Issue of the 'Dark Powers' 161
 - 3.3 Bureaucracy, Military Associations, Police 163
 - 3.4 Bonapartism, Caesarism and Fascism 165

12	Contemporary Caesarism(s)	167
1	Totalitarian Trends	167
1.1	War of Position, Siege, and Concentration	167
1.2	A 'Totalitarian' Conception of the World	170
1.3	The Role of the Party	172
2	Between Moscow and Rome	176
2.1	Progressive or Regressive Authoritarianism?	176
2.2	Fascist Corporatism	177
2.3	'Statolatry' and the 'Return' of the Economic-Corporative Phase	179
2.4	Trotsky, Bonapartism and Napoleonism	183
3	'Alternative Modernities'	187
3.1	Black Parliamentarism, Critique and Self-critique	187
3.2	The Legal-Real Opposition and the Image of the Barometer	190
4	'Caesarism without a Caesar' and the Issue of the Modern Prince	193
4.1	Individual Action and Collective Will	193
4.2	Caesarism and the Modern Prince	195
4.3	The 'Party-Caesar' and the Role of Charismatic Figures
13	Caesarism, Bonapartism and the 'Return to Marx' in the Prison Writings	201
1	Gramsci and the Marxian Legacy	201
2	Caesarism and Bonapartism in the Prison Notebooks	202
	Bibliography	207
	Name Index	223
	Subject Index	228