The pathophysiological characteristics of the COVID-19 syndrome, the particular transmissibility of SARS-CoV-2 make dentists and all dental workers highly exposed to a risk of infection. Efficient sanitizing procedures combined with the correct use of PPE can significantly reduce the probability of SARS-CoV-2 being transmitted during dental practice. Moreover, this virus is an invisible and extremely sneaky enemy that can be transmitted in several ways. Social distancing, correct behavioral rules, an adequate air exchange of all the dental office/clinic rooms, validated instrument sterilization, and surface sanitizing protocols, can reduce the risk of spreading SARS-CoV-2 but not to resetting it.
