Communication skills

My active participation as volunteer in the 'European Scout Federation' (FSE), helped me developing teamworking skills and the ability to adapt to different situations and groups. In the past few years I was mainly involved in coordinating activities for kids, leading different groups of young men and facilitating their relationships. I was also part of the 'Direction Patrol' of the group, where I coordinated with the other five leaders, to establish and follow the goals of the group.

Organisational / managerial skills

I recently received the brevet of 'Association Chief' finalising my formation, at the age of only 24. During my activity as a leader I was responsible for the formation and the education of both the group of over 20 kids and the young men that were assigned to help me. Over the course of my leadership the number of kids signed up in my group doubled, while I managed to maintain a stable number of 'helpers' (members of the patrol helping me in the activities). I developed and organised several methods to conceive, organise, keep track and resume the activities of the group, integrating digital tools to schedule meetings, remembering appointments as well as asking, confirming and verifying the participation to specific events. Overall, I was able to earn the trust of about seventy families, to organise and manage summer camps for kids of age 8 to 11. Those camps took place in isolated structures, usually near mountains or woods, for about ten straight days.

Job-related skills Good skills as promoter and vendor, developed by working as interpreter, promoter and sale assistant for 'Biosolidale Distribuzione srl.', in various occasions such as trade fairs in Italy, France, GB, Germany, Spain, Emirates and more.
